

Rosie Horne

After reading so many stories about Rosie Horne in the pages of Cross Country magazine, we thought we had better have a closer look.

Rosie was born in Sidcup and grew up in Ashford, Kent. Her parents knew she was going to be a performer because since she was an infant, she has spent her days dancing and singing.

Rosie was interested in opera and musicals and for five or six years she could be found performing on stage in both types of show. Also having done ballet since the age of three, Rosie has an understanding for different dance styles and sometimes has the urge to go out and have a boogie on the dance floor for the evening when she isn't singing or performing.

Being brought up near the countryside has kept Rosie in contact with an understanding of a country way of life. She also has an understanding with Country music lovers. Although some people say that our country is not the same and it does not go with the American way of life, Rosie understands that it is her interpretation on the country and Country music that speaks out.

Knowing that there was a world out there for Country artists, Rosie took it upon herself, with the help from her family, to find out more about Country music and try to pursue a career on the Country music scene.

Although Rosie now has a huge passion for Country music and it is something that will never be taken away from her, she also finds time to have fun as a teenager and find new friends outside of her life as a Country performer.

Discipline has taught Rosie to always make sure she is somewhere when she says she will be. Being only 18, mum and dad take her time to make sure she is at venues and other nights out which is, as you know, a great help to any teenager these days.

Rosie is also a songwriter with a wide range of different songs and lyrics which shows her versatility in her voice and genres. She has also appeared on the April issue of Hotdisc so people all over the world will now have had the chance to hear her on their local radio stations.

Some of these songs will be recorded and are on the internet. Take a look and a listen at www.rosiehorne.moonfruit.com or www.myspace.com/rosehorne.
